WiM Regensburg is a group dedicated to fostering an inclusive and supportive environment for women mathematicians so that to bridge the gender gap in the field of mathematics.

In this talk

we will focus on some current issues regarding diversity and inclusivity in mathematics, with a particular attention to the gender affected ones. Based on a survey done in May 2025 among math PhD students and more advanced positions-holders throughout Europe and on some related research, the talk will provide powerful insights on the topic, leading the participants to related discussions.
